Draft decision V

Additional one-day meeting

The Economic and Social Council decides that a one-day meeting will be organized for members of the Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues to discuss methods of work. The one-day meeting will be in addition to the meetings already planned for the fourteenth session of the Permanent Forum and is to be organized without any budgetary implications.

B. Matters brought to the attention of the Council

1. The Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues has identified the following proposals, objectives, recommendations and areas of possible future action and, through the Economic and Social Council, recommends that States, entities of the United Nations system, intergovernmental organizations, indigenous peoples, the private sector and non-governmental organizations assist in their realization.
2. It is the understanding of the secretariat of the Permanent Forum that those proposals, objectives, recommendations and areas of possible future action to be carried out by the United Nations, as set out below, will be implemented to the extent that resources from the regular budget and extrabudgetary resources are available.

Recommendations of the Permanent Forum

Special theme: “Principles of good governance consistent with the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples: articles 3 to 6 and 46”

3. Good governance must be achieved at the international, national, regional and local levels and applies to Governments as well as corporate organizations and other institutions, including the governments and institutions of indigenous peoples. Good governance consists of the following elements or principles, which are interlinked and mutually reinforcing: transparency; responsiveness; consensus-building; equity and inclusiveness; effectiveness and efficiency; accountability; participation; consultation and consent; human rights; and the rule of law. Good governance is about who has access to decision-making and authority with regard to lands, territories and resources that result in revenue and services to peoples.

4. Such principles are key aspects of good governance and yet indigenous peoples continue to face obstacles to exercising their rights in terms of substance, content and procedure. The rights of indigenous peoples must not be empty rights. The practice of good governance, as distinct from the principles, applies to authorities, including those that address matters concerning lands, territories, resources, peoples and citizens, fiscal resources and services.

5. Indigenous peoples in almost all countries have suffered the consequences of exploitation, subjugation and domination by States across the globe. The sixth preambular paragraph of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples states that “indigenous peoples have suffered from historic injustices as a result of, inter alia, their colonization and dispossession of their lands, territories and resources, thus preventing them from exercising, in particular, their right to development in accordance with their own needs and interests”. Such actions from the colonial era continue in many countries today. Whether considered individually or as a whole, the elements or principles of good governance have been achieved by very few countries.

6. Despite that reality, indigenous peoples have demonstrated extraordinary examples of good governance, ranging from the Haudenosaunee to the National Congress of Australia’s First Peoples. According to Haudenosaunee Faithkeeper Oren Lyons, self-determination as the basis of good governance means that indigenous peoples are equal to all other peoples.

7. The Permanent Forum notes that there are examples of indigenous laws, traditions and customs that represent good governance. There are instances where States have worked with indigenous peoples to develop governance structures that improve conditions in indigenous communities and where indigenous peoples are involved in every stage of project design. Such instances emphasize the importance of indigenous participation in decision-making and the design of governance approaches. The Permanent Forum heard constructive examples from States, including from Nicaragua in relation to the autonomy of indigenous peoples on the Atlantic coast and from the Government of Denmark in the specific context of the right to self-determination of Greenland.

8. Failure to achieve good governance can have devastating consequences. According to the Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific, “bad governance is being increasingly regarded as one of the root causes of all evil within our societies”.¹ Many examples of bad governance were cited, in particular with regard to bureaucracy, such as Governments making decisions without indigenous participation, consultation, or free, prior and informed consent; Governments making policy in centralized locations without input from indigenous peoples; and the imposition of new policies and programmes without any notice. Such actions lead to disempowerment, a lack of identity and violations of indigenous peoples’ human rights. In particular, some States have policies that criminalize indigenous peoples when they exercise the right to self-determination, including over their lands and territories.

9. Good governance must be considered from an integral view. Indigenous peoples’ own forms of government are based on their social, economic, political, cultural and spiritual institutions, customs and practices. Indigenous peoples’ forms of governance are addressed within the framework of article 3 of the Declaration. Indigenous forms of governance must be supported, as they often comply with indigenous peoples’ identity, customs, rituals and principles of respect and rights to their territories and administration of natural resources. Indigenous governance must be recognized and respected in the context of collective rights, including free, prior and informed consent, in order to ensure legal pluralism.

10. The Permanent Forum congratulates its member Edward John on his report entitled “Study on the impacts of the Doctrine of Discovery on indigenous peoples, including mechanisms, processes and instruments of redress” (E/C.19/2014/3), and reaffirms that all doctrines, including the doctrine of discovery, that advocate superiority on the basis of national origin or racial, religious, ethnic or cultural differences are racist, scientifically false, legally invalid, morally condemnable and socially unjust and should be repudiated in word and action.

Expert group meeting on the theme “Sexual health and reproductive rights: articles 21, 22 (1), 23 and 24 of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples”

11. At its twelfth session, the Permanent Forum recommended that the Economic and Social Council authorize a three-day international expert group meeting on the theme “Sexual health and reproductive rights: articles 21, 22 (1), 23 and 24 of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples”. On 7 November 2013, at its reconvened substantive session, the Council authorized the international expert group meeting (decision 2013/259), with the following participants: members of the Permanent Forum, representatives of the United Nations system, other interested intergovernmental organizations, experts from indigenous peoples’ organizations and interested Member States. The Council requested that the results of the meeting be reported to the Permanent Forum at its thirteenth session, in May 2014. In January 2014, the three-day expert group meeting was held at United Nations Headquarters.

12. Recognizing the central role of health as a precondition for economic and social development, the Permanent Forum reaffirms the right of indigenous peoples to the highest attainable standards of health, including sexual health and reproductive rights, within the context of the International Conference on Population and Development, including access to health-care services for all without distinction. Over the past 20 years, the world has experienced remarkable progress in important areas concerning sexual health and reproductive rights. However, indigenous peoples are still disproportionately affected by many relevant problems, and little change has effectively occurred in their lives and well-being.

13. The Permanent Forum takes note of the report (E/C.19/2014/8) and recommendations of the expert group meeting, and reiterates and supports the recommendations contained in paragraphs 62, 63, 64, 70 and 72 of the report, as set out below, which are specifically addressed to entities of the United Nations system and States Members of the United Nations.²

14. The Permanent Forum recommends that the World Health Organization, the United Nations Population Fund and other relevant entities coordinate in the formulation of key intercultural standards and indicators of quality of care to be considered in the definition of a future post-2015 goal on universal health coverage that includes the sexual and reproductive health of indigenous peoples.

15. The Permanent Forum recommends that United Nations agencies and actors coordinate in the development and implementation of an international research project on the sexual and reproductive health of indigenous peoples, ensuring an active partnership with indigenous peoples and organizations in all stages of the project.

16. Considering their impact on the sexual health and reproductive rights of indigenous peoples, the Permanent Forum calls, in paragraph 62 of the report, for “a legal review of United Nations chemical conventions, in particular the Rotterdam Convention, to ensure that they are in conformity with international human rights standards, including the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples and the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities”.

17. The Permanent Forum recommends, in paragraph 64 of the report, that the relevant United Nations entities should “conduct a study, in partnership with indigenous peoples’ organizations, that documents the linkage between environmental violence, including the operations of extractive industries, chemical pollution and the destruction of the indigenous habitat, and the sexual and reproductive health of indigenous peoples, as well as issues pertaining to sexual exploitation, trafficking of indigenous girls and sexual violence, with concrete recommendations on protection measures”.

18. The Permanent Forum recommends that the Joint United Nations Programme on HIV/AIDS, the United Nations Children’s Fund and other relevant United Nations entities collaborate with indigenous organizations in all regions to develop comprehensive guidelines, including best practices for culturally safe sex education by and for indigenous peoples. That type of comprehensive education may serve as an effective violence-prevention means.

Half-day discussion on the Asian Region

19. At its sixth session, in 2007, the Permanent Forum held a half-day discussion on Asia and made a range of recommendations to Asian States as well as to the

² It should be noted there was no consensus on the recommendations that refer to the report of the Expert group meeting on the theme “Sexual health and reproductive rights: articles 21, 22 (1), 23 and 24 of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples”.

United Nations system and indigenous peoples themselves. The Forum expresses concern that most of those recommendations are yet to be implemented. At the same time, it appreciates the positive steps and developments in addressing the issues of indigenous peoples in Asia. These include the legal recognition of the Ainu as the indigenous people of Japan, the decision of the Constitutional Court of Indonesia recognizing the customary rights of indigenous peoples with regard to forests and the increased engagement and partnerships of national human rights institutions and agencies of the United Nations system with indigenous organizations and institutions.

20. The Permanent Forum is also concerned by the increasing adverse impacts of climate change and by mitigation and adaptation measures such as large hydroelectric dams, nuclear power plants, biofuel plantations, windmills and geothermal plants, which are being built in indigenous territories without the free, prior and informed consent or the full and effective participation of indigenous peoples. Likewise, the economic investment plan of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) does not take into account the overall well-being and rights of indigenous peoples. Instead of recognizing the human rights of indigenous peoples within the region, existing unsustainable development practices coupled with the ASEAN free trade agreements that are due to come into effect in 2015 will only serve to further marginalize indigenous peoples.

21. The Permanent Forum recommends that States establish mechanisms and processes for consistent dialogues and consultations with indigenous peoples in their countries on ways and means to foster better relationships and to enable indigenous peoples to exercise fully their civil, political, economic, social and cultural rights, in addition to other individual and collective human rights.

22. The Permanent Forum recommends that States immediately begin the process of demarcation of indigenous peoples' lands and territories in accordance with customary laws and the norms reflected in the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples, with a view to further protecting indigenous peoples' lands and resources from expropriation, exploitation and designation as conservation areas or national parks without the free, prior and informed consent of indigenous peoples, as set out in articles 19, 26 and 27 of the Declaration.

23. The Permanent Forum recommends that States ensure that the territories of indigenous peoples in Asia be free of State military interventions and that military bases, camps and training centres established in indigenous territories without the free, prior and informed consent of indigenous peoples be removed immediately, consistent with articles 19 and 30 of the Declaration.

24. The Permanent Forum recommends that States ensure access to justice for indigenous peoples, including indigenous women, through formal justice institutions, national human rights institutions and other forms of redress or recourse, all while taking into account indigenous peoples' customary laws, institutions and processes, consistent with articles 21, 22 and 34 of the Declaration.

25. The Permanent Forum recommends that the ASEAN Intergovernmental Commission on Human Rights recognize the human rights of indigenous peoples in the ASEAN declaration on human rights and establish a working group on indigenous peoples. In addition, the Forum urges the South Asian Association for Regional Cooperation to establish a human rights commission and a working group on indigenous peoples.

26. The Permanent Forum welcomes the initiatives of national human rights institutions, such as those from Malaysia, Indonesia and Bangladesh, and encourages other human rights institutions to conduct national inquiries on the rights of indigenous peoples to their lands, territories and resources.

Comprehensive dialogue with United Nations agencies and funds

27. The Permanent Forum is concerned about the reduction in indigenous-specific funding for programmes and projects by United Nations agencies, funds and programmes, for example the depletion of resources of the voluntary fund of the World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO) for accredited indigenous peoples and local community observers. The Forum recommends that such United Nations entities ensure substantial funding to support targeted programmes and projects for indigenous peoples consistent with article 41 of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples.

28. The Permanent Forum welcomes the important technical Voluntary Guidelines on the Responsible Governance of Tenure of Land, Fisheries and Forests in the Context of Food Security of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO) and recommends that FAO and other agencies, in cooperation with indigenous peoples, organize a workshop on the implementation of these guidelines in order to strengthen indigenous peoples' rights to land, territories and resources consistent with articles 25, 26, 41 and 42 of the Declaration.

29. Alarmed at attempts to exclude indigenous peoples of Africa in the application of World Bank Operational Policy 4.10, the Permanent Forum recommends that the World Bank immediately initiate consultations with States and indigenous peoples in Africa as part of its safeguards policy review and ensure the application of safeguards to indigenous peoples of Africa, as directed by articles 19 and 41 of the Declaration.

30. The Permanent Forum takes note of the concerns expressed by the African Indigenous Peoples Caucus on the announcement by the World Bank in February 2014 of its intention to map Africa's mineral resources by using satellites and airborne mineral surveys. The Forum calls upon the World Bank, African Governments, investor Governments and the private sector to disclose information about the "billion-dollar map" project, prior to any intervention and in a transparent manner, and requests that commitments to international norms and standards in relation to the rights of indigenous peoples be recognized and respected. The Forum also recommends that the World Bank involve indigenous peoples' representatives in the mapping process and that indigenous peoples' free, prior and informed consent be respected, consistent with articles 19 and 41 of the Declaration.

31. The Permanent Forum welcomes the study to examine challenges in the African region to protecting traditional knowledge, genetic resources and folklore prepared by Paul Kanyinke Sena (E/C.19/2014/2), acknowledges the support provided by the WIPO secretariat towards the completion of that study and, in this regard, calls upon the WIPO secretariat to extend its outreach and awareness-raising activities in respect of indigenous peoples, with a particular focus on African indigenous peoples so as to increase their awareness of WIPO processes, and to further develop culturally appropriate training and capacity-building materials for indigenous peoples consistent with article 41 of the Declaration.

32. The Permanent Forum recommends that the International Finance Corporation establish a mechanism of engagement with indigenous peoples in the context of its sustainability framework, including Performance Standard 7, on indigenous peoples.

33. The Permanent Forum takes note of the international campaign to end sex discrimination in nationality and citizenship laws to be launched in June 2014 under the auspices of a steering committee consisting of Equality Now, Equal Rights Trust, Tilburg University, the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees and the United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women (UN-Women). The Forum therefore calls upon those Member States whose constitutional provisions and legislation require review, as a matter of urgency, to support this global campaign, consistent with the Declaration and the rights of indigenous women highlighted in articles 21 and 22.

34. The Permanent Forum recommends that United Nations agencies convene a high-level meeting with representatives of indigenous women to review the commitments and actions for securing the human rights of indigenous women highlighted in articles 21, 22 and 41 of the Declaration.

35. The Permanent Forum underscores the need to strengthen collaboration with UN-Women in order to finalize a road map, including concrete actions, and specific outcomes within their next strategic plan as well as to include indigenous women's priorities in global, regional and national programmes, consistent with articles 21, 22 and 41 of the Declaration.

36. The Permanent Forum recommends that the International Fund for Agricultural Development (IFAD) convene platforms of dialogue with countries, United Nations agencies and private sector actors to find solutions to improve the economic empowerment of indigenous peoples consistent with their cultural identity and diversity, as well as sustainable and equitable development. The Forum also recommends that specific indicators pertaining to the well-being of indigenous peoples be systematically adopted in IFAD-funded projects implemented in accordance with article 41 of the Declaration.

37. The Permanent Forum recommends that United Nations agencies review their policies, which presently allow them to assist only indigenous peoples in developing countries, and to urgently revise such policies to ensure that all indigenous peoples, in both developed and developing countries, have access to resources, technical assistance and other support from all United Nations agencies and funds.

Ongoing priorities and themes

38. Poverty and inequality are structural problems and the positive impacts of social policies are often not sufficient to reduce the disparities in access to human development opportunities for indigenous children and youth. Human development is the process of enlarging people's freedoms and access to equal opportunities and of improving their well-being. Owing to their marginalization, indigenous children and youth either do not have or struggle to have the opportunity to lead lives that they value or to improve their situation in order to have the chance to lead full lives.

39. The economic model of extractivism and social exclusion, in addition to historical factors of colonization and discrimination, is creating new gaps between indigenous children and youth and non-indigenous children and youth. The historical gaps have been aggravated by these new problems and require special attention.

40. The Permanent Forum underscores the fact that the plight of children and youth in the African region is severe and that the situation of indigenous children and youth is even more critical because they are the primary victims of war, poverty, hunger, starvation, malnutrition and disease. Many indigenous children and youth make their way through life impoverished, abandoned, uneducated, malnourished, discriminated against, neglected and vulnerable. For them, life is a daily struggle for survival. For many, the concept of childhood as a time to grow, learn, play and feel safe is meaningless.

41. The Permanent Forum acknowledges the efforts and initiatives of States and United Nations agencies to promote mother-tongue based multilingual education, develop health programmes and provide skills to indigenous children and youth. In this regard, the Forum encourages States and United Nations agencies to increase their efforts in a targeted and wide-scale manner to respond to the needs and priorities of indigenous children and youth, especially in the areas of education and health, in a manner that is culturally sensitive and ensures their overall well-being consistent with articles 11, 14, 41 and 42 of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples.

42. The Permanent Forum acknowledges the entry into force on 14 April 2014 of the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on a communications procedure. In this regard, it recommends that the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, the United Nations Children's Fund, other United Nations agencies and States support the dissemination of the guide to this Optional Protocol, including its translation into different languages and the building of capacity among indigenous organizations and institutions to make effective use of the Optional Protocol in promoting and protecting the rights of indigenous children and youth.

43. The Permanent Forum urges States to generate statistics disaggregated by ethnicity, gender, indigenous identity, language, language skills and self-identification, and to provide sources of data to allow for a more accurate assessment of whether indigenous children and youth are actually benefiting from the expenditure earmarked for them. The Forum also urges United Nations agencies, funds and programmes to support member States in generating statistics and the United Nations agencies, funds and programmes and academic centres to produce a toolkit that provides a comprehensive and an accurate overview of human development indicators concerning indigenous children and youth.

44. The Permanent Forum further urges States to improve their collection of data on self-harm and suicide among indigenous children and youth, as well as on violence against indigenous women, boys and girls, to facilitate better understanding of the extent of the problem. States should commit to reducing the incidence of self-harm, violence and suicide among indigenous children and youth through the allocation of adequate resources to holistic prevention and support services, in partnership with indigenous peoples.

45. The Permanent Forum urges States to implement articles 11 and 13 of the Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples, in particular in relation to the practice and revitalization of indigenous peoples' languages, cultural traditions and customs as a way of building resilience and preventing self-harm, violence and suicide.

46. The Permanent Forum also urges States to fund and deliver training in suicide prevention and mental health awareness to all teaching and non-teaching staff in all schools attended by indigenous children. The development of localized training programmes adapted to each culture consistent with articles 11, 14, 15 and 31 should be encouraged.

47. The Permanent Forum further urges the General Assembly to proclaim an international year of the world's indigenous children and youth.

Post-2015 development agenda

48. The Permanent Forum recommends that member States and relevant United Nations agencies place employment, decent work, social protection and recognition of traditional occupations and livelihoods of indigenous peoples, including pastoralism, on the post-2015 development agenda. A focus on indigenous peoples' access to decent work, livelihoods and social protection is of utmost importance in this context. It will provide the opportunity to work globally towards building the enabling conditions for capturing the opportunities of sustainable development for pastoralists.

49. The Permanent Forum recommends that Member States and United Nations agencies recognize indigenous peoples as distinct stakeholders and make a specific separate reference to indigenous peoples, and not simply include them under the terms "marginalized and vulnerable groups", in both the sustainable development goals and the post-2015 development agenda, including the Small Island Developing States process, and that this recommendation, with the specific recognition of indigenous peoples' views and priorities for development, should be reflected in the goals and targets to be developed, including appropriate indicators and data disaggregation.

50. The Permanent Forum calls on the chairs of the Open Working Group on Sustainable Development Goals to address inequalities through the sustainable development goals, with a special focus on indigenous peoples, in order to uphold human rights for all, eliminate discrimination, reduce inequalities and ensure that no one is left behind.

Half-day discussion on the World Conference on Indigenous Peoples

51. At its thirteenth session, the Permanent Forum convened a one-day dialogue on the high-level plenary meeting also known as the World Conference on Indigenous Peoples. The Forum is seriously concerned at the lack of substantive progress in the informal consultations held by, or on behalf of, the President of the General Assembly with Member States and indigenous peoples. The Forum is also alarmed at the conduct of certain States, whose interactions with the President of the Assembly indicate a clear departure from the modalities set out in General Assembly resolution 66/296 on the organization of the Conference. Notwithstanding the commitments made by the Assembly in that resolution, the Permanent Forum is deeply concerned that the full, effective and equal participation of indigenous peoples in all processes leading to and including the high-level plenary meeting remains uncertain. Clear and decisive leadership by the President of the Assembly is required to proceed with preparations leading up to the Conference.

52. The Permanent Forum reiterates that the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples is the normative framework for the high-level plenary meeting/World Conference on Indigenous Peoples, to be convened during the sixty-ninth session of the General Assembly. The provisions of resolution 66/296 must be given the widest and most generous interpretation possible in order to ensure the full and effective participation of indigenous peoples.

53. The Permanent Forum welcomes the organization by the Sami Parliament of Norway of the Global Indigenous Preparatory Conference for the World Conference on Indigenous Peoples, held in Alta, Norway from 10 to 12 June 2013. Member States, the United Nations system and indigenous peoples are urged to consider the Alta Outcome Document (A/67/994, annex) as the basis for consultations on the elaboration of the outcome document of the high-level plenary meeting/World Conference on Indigenous Peoples.

54. The Permanent Forum reiterates that all decisions related to the high-level plenary meeting/World Conference on Indigenous Peoples, its arrangements and the development of the outcome document should be made with the full, equal, direct and effective participation of indigenous peoples, as recognized by the General Assembly in its resolution 66/296, in the Alta Outcome Document and in several recommendations of the Forum (E/2011/43, paras. 122-123; E/2012/43, paras. 69 and 83; and E/2013/43, para. 85).

55. The Permanent Forum welcomes the efforts of the indigenous Global Coordinating Group to respond to the request of the President of the General Assembly as its sixty-eighth session, which concluded with the nomination of two indigenous advisers. The Forum urges the President of the sixty-eighth session to formalize their designation so as to start the consultation process on the high-level plenary meeting/World Conference on Indigenous Peoples as soon as possible, by June.

56. The Permanent Forum recommends that the President of the General Assembly take immediate steps to ensure the full, equal, direct and effective participation of indigenous peoples throughout all aspects and processes of the high-level plenary meeting/World Conference on Indigenous Peoples in order to achieve an action-oriented, concise, inclusive, constructive and comprehensive outcome that will genuinely promote the full and effective implementation of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples (art. 18).

57. In relation to the preparation for the high-level plenary meeting/World Conference, the Permanent Forum welcomes the study entitled “Rights of indigenous peoples: achievements and challenges in the Latin American countries”, prepared by the Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean in collaboration with indigenous peoples, and encourages States, agencies and regional commissions to undertake similar studies.

58. The Permanent Forum recommends that the “Study on the impacts of the Doctrine of Discovery on indigenous peoples, including mechanisms, processes and instruments of redress” (E/C.19/2014/3), with references to the Declaration and particularly to articles 26 to 28, 32 and 40, be submitted to the President of the General Assembly and to Member States as a reference guide in the discussions relating to the high-level plenary meeting/World Conference on Indigenous Peoples.

Human rights

59. The Permanent Forum congratulates James Anaya on the successful conclusion of his term as Special Rapporteur on the rights of indigenous peoples. The Forum reinforces the conclusions of the Special Rapporteur about the enlightened, pragmatic and optimistic approaches of the indigenous human rights movement. It also welcomes the recent appointment of Victoria Tauli-Corpuz as the Special Rapporteur on the rights of indigenous peoples and looks forward to working closely with her.

60. The Permanent Forum welcomes the presentations made by Wilton Littlechild on behalf of the Expert Mechanism on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples, by Francisco Cali, President of the Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination, by Soyata Maiga, on behalf of the African Commission on Human and Peoples' Rights, by Emilio Alvarez, Executive Secretary of the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights and by Kenneth Deer on behalf of the Voluntary Fund for Indigenous Peoples. The Forum also congratulates Mr. Cali and acknowledges his appointment as the first indigenous person to be appointed as President of a United Nations treaty body.

61. The Permanent Forum reiterates its previous relevant recommendations and recognizes the continuing need to review existing laws and constitutions based upon international human rights norms and standards, especially in relation to persistent forms of racial discrimination in the context of indigenous peoples.

62. In accordance with article 42 of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples, the Permanent Forum urges States to conduct an independent audit of their constitutional and other laws, policies and programmes in order to assess their consistency with the Declaration and the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination, and to amend such laws, policies and programmes in order to remove all forms of discrimination. In particular, the Forum urges States to prioritize laws, policies and programmes that target hate speech and political and racial vilification.

63. The Permanent Forum acknowledges the continuing negotiations between the Nordic States and the Sami peoples towards the adoption of a Nordic Sami convention. The Forum recommends that the minimum international human rights standards contained in the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples be the framework for all negotiations concerning the convention and the harmonizing of Sami rights within Nordic countries. It urges Nordic States to recognize and respect the Sami peoples' right to self-determination, to determine their own identity or membership of their institutions in accordance with their customs and their right not to be subjected to forced assimilation, consistent with articles 8 and 33 of the Declaration, the conclusions and recommendations of the Special Rapporteur on the rights of indigenous peoples and the Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination (see CERD/C/FIN/CO/19, para. 13).

64. The Permanent Forum calls the attention of States to the need to create or strengthen national bodies with a mandate for the protection of the rights and interests of indigenous peoples in line with the Declaration. The Forum notes the efforts of certain States to create institutions for the rights and interests of indigenous peoples as Government bodies, including ombudsmen who deal with issues and situations regarding the protection of the rights and interests of indigenous peoples. It recommends that other States draw upon such experiences which highlight the promotion and protection of the rights of indigenous peoples.

65. The Permanent Forum urges all Member States and United Nations agencies and country teams to initiate indigenous human rights training and education programmes in their institutions and activities, in particular the existing and emerging international jurisprudence on the human rights and standards contained in the Declaration and their application and relevance at the national and local levels.

66. The Permanent Forum acknowledges the letter dated 21 May 2014 of the Government of Ukraine addressed to the Secretary-General of the United Nations and congratulates the Government of Ukraine on the statement contained therein, in which it expresses its support of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples.

67. The Permanent Forum calls on the entities of the United Nations system to collaborate with indigenous peoples in designing and implementing early warning systems to better ensure peace, security and good governance in their lands. That could include greater coordination between the Office of the Special Adviser on the Prevention of Genocide, the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, the Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination and indigenous peoples through their representative institutions.

Future work of the Permanent Forum, including emerging issues
